

I believe spending time surrounded by the rich savannas of East Africa, and its inhabitants, is truly humbling, spiritually rewarding, and familiar. For me, time spent on the savanna (on safari) deeply enriches my life while reminding me of our roots as a species, and encouraging me to acknowledge all the bonds that link living things. Perhaps it will do the same for the reader.

My relationship with Peter Nanyaro began in 2006 when Susan and I visited for the first time Klein's Camp in the Northern Serengeti -- Peter was our guide and driver. I met Vicky Simbeye the following year on a private guiding experience in the areas of Lake Manyara and Ngorongoro. We've enjoyed numerous safari experiences together and together summited Mt Kilimanjaro (the highest peak in Africa) in 2017.
